Ethics of Caring and Inclusion: Implications for Educational Reform

Undergraduate: CORE 535.02
Graduate: CORE 691.33

July 5—9, 2010
Time: 8:30 AM - 4:30 PM
Location: EDT 386

Inclusive education is struggling to become an accepted classroom practice. One of the challenges is to move beyond the classroom and situate inclusive education in the broader context of educational reform and an ethic of caring. This course will draw on the participant's beliefs, knowledge, and practices, while exploring strategies needed to develop effective school approaches within an ethic of caring.

Adapting Curriculum in Schools from K-12

Undergraduate: CORE 535.01
Graduate: CORE 691.04

July 12—16 2010
Time: 8:30 AM - 4:30 PM
Location: EDT 386

For teachers and school administrators who have students with developmental disabilities as members of their regular classes or anticipate doing so. A variety of practical strategies for developing meaningful curricular and instructional methods for the elementary and secondary classroom begins with the premise that the content of the regular curriculum is the starting point for program development for all students.

Addressing Challenging Behaviours in the Classroom

Undergraduate: CORE 535.03
Graduate: CORE 691.32

July 19—23, 2010
Time: 8:30 AM - 4:30 PM
Location: EDT 386

This course will examine the participants' belief systems about challenging behaviour. Participants will be offered opportunities to enter into a process of testing their beliefs and practices. Theoretical constructs of understanding behaviour will be embedded within a practical context that takes into account the current issues/stressors that teachers encounter in today's inclusive classrooms.
